FEDERAL QUARANTINE ON SWINE IN THREE COUNTIES

A Federal Quarantine of swine and swine products from the Maine Counties of York, Cumberland and Kennebec was announced Monday by Dr. Granville W. Breed of the U. S. Bureau of Animal Husbandry.

Under the quarantine, Breed's regulations excepted removal of swine under permit for immediate slaughter and processing, and the through shipment of edible products moved across the quarantined area from an area not infected with vesicular exanthema.

Dr. Breed and officials of the Maine Department of Agriculture's Division of Animal Industry reported eight additional infected swine herds, throwing the total of animals scheduled for slaughter to 3,000, in 26 herds.

Seven of the eight herds reported this week end were in Cumberland County, where the disease outbreak was reported a week ago. The eighth case was reported in York which had four herds infected previously.

Outside of Cumberland and York counties, one herd in Kennebec was infected.

Vesicular exanthema is not communicable to man, but its symptoms are identical to those of foot and mouth disease and 10-day tests differentiate it from the more dangerous disease.

The Week in Oxford County

A petition has been in circulation in Mexico to secure names to warrant the inclusion of an article in the warrant for town meeting, the purpose of which is to consolidate the towns of Rumford and Mexico. The petition was sponsored by Benjamin J. Robertson who has been Town Clerk of Mexico for 20 years.

A number of homes owned by the E. L. Tibbets Spool Co., Inc., of Locke Mills, have been sold to the residents. In many cases water rights have been conveyed.

George H. Viles, vice-president and treasurer of the South Paris Savings Bank, was guest of honor at the annual banquet of this institution last Thursday. Mr. Viles has served banks of Maine officially for 50 years.

A temporary bridge span between Mexico and Lincoln Ave., Rumford, was wrecked and washed away when ice piled up during the recent warm and rainy weather.

Selectmen of Rumford will hold a special meeting at 7:30 this Thursday evening in an effort to straighten out the parking situation. It is reported that complaints are mostly from the Strathglass Park area where the residents have been tagged for overnight parking.

MAINE SCIENTISTS HAVE WORLD-WIDE REPUTATION

Workers at the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station have a world-wide reputation.

That was proved again this week with the receipt at the Experiment Station offices in Orono of a Scandinavian agricultural journal published in Stockholm, Sweden. Swedish agricultural scientists writing about potato aphids had quoted the Maine scientists several times in their articles and had given them credit in their list of references.

The Experiment Station scientists quoted by the Swedish writers were Dr. Geddes Simpson, Maine aphid specialist; R. M. Cobb, supervisor at the Experiment Station's Aroostook Farm; P. M. Lombard, retired USDA scientist; and Wayland Shands, U. S. Department of Agriculture specialist who is stationed at the Experiment Station in Orono.

Survey Reveals Enrollment Still Growing; See Crowded Rooms Again By Next Year

An interesting and important discussion of future school planning, led by Mr. Vachon of the School Survey Committee, was missed by those who did not attend the last P.T.A. meeting. Those present felt that a brief report of the discussion should be put in the Bethel Citizen. Following are some facts offered as a part of the discussion.

Objective of Survey Committee: "To recommend obtaining the best educational facilities for the children of Bethel at the lowest cost to the taxpayer while meeting the needs for a rapidly increasing enrollment."

Five main topics of discussion: 1. Present and future enrollment. 2. Cost of facilities needed. 3. Financial ability of town. 4. Advisability of conveying all pupils to the village provided the beginners are taken home at noon. 5. Cost of modernizing rural facilities.

The discussion brought out the fact that the present enrollment of 525 is up 30 from last year and within a few years the enrollment will go over 575. This year overcrowding has already started and next year some rooms are likely to have forty or more pupils which is ten to fifteen more than there should be in order that the proper amount of individual instruction may be given. Next year it will be necessary to split the sub-primary grade and have some of the pupils located in and near the village attend an afternoon session. All enrollment figures available indicate that the village will need in the immediate future a minimum of two rooms per grade, or a total of four more than now exist.

No parents from rural areas were present so the Committee was unable to get any opinions as to how they would feel about having all the pupils conveyed to the village provided the beginning pupils were taken home at noon.

When asked which plan they would favor: two more rooms, four rooms, or four rooms and an auditorium, no hands were raised for the first two but it was nearly unanimous for the latter.

It was mentioned that the Survey Committee planned to get out a report before March.

CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE STILL BEHIND LAST YEAR'S TOTAL

While the Christmas Seal Sale of the Maine Tuberculosis Association has not reached its goal in Oxford County, Dr. Thomas A. Foster, Portland, president of the association, said today that he hoped late returns, still being received, would bring the total to the amount needed to maintain the association's 1953 tuberculosis control program.

The 1952 Christmas Seal Sale, conducted by the association, throughout the county, opened last November 17.

"The response to the 1952 Christmas Seal Sale thus far has been encouraging, but the total for the county is still slightly behind the record for the same date last year and short of the final goal," Dr. Foster said.

"The Christmas Seal Sale for Oxford County on January 15, a year ago was $2,514.20. On January 15 this year (1953), it was $2,242.92. This amount is $261.28 behind the final total of $2,504.20 contributed by March 30, 1952 when record on last year's sale were closed," he stated.

Returns for Christmas Seals are "tramped" to the holiday season," Dr. Foster said, "and the association president continued, and the funds contributed work the year round against tuberculosis as the number one infectious disease killer in the country."

Dr. Foster pointed out that there are many people to whom Christmas Seal letters were sent and who have not responded yet, and urged everyone who has not already done so to answer his Christmas Seal letter soon.

Oxford County towns which have exceeded the final Christmas seal total of last year's sale are: Bethel, Brownfield, Denmark, Dixfield, Gilead, Greenwood, Lincoln, Pittsford, Magalloway and Waterford.

Sharing the Wealth

The 35th Harding College Freedom Forum, held on our campus last week, dug deeply into the problem of how to improve labor-management relations in America. Among the 100 conferees from 25 states were 15 men from the ranks of organized labor. Other groups represented included business, the clergy, education, the American Legion, and civic clubs. There were five women conferees.

The give-and-take Forum discussions on the problem of labor-management relations were based on the unanimously accepted fact that every American, regardless of his occupation, economic status or politics, has a stake in making the private enterprise system work better and produce more goods and services. The more wealth the system produces, the better will be the living standard of everyone.

65 per cent to employees. Of unusual interest at the Forum were the facts showing that 65 per cent of the national income goes to employees, 9 per cent to professional men and unincorporated business, 7 per cent to farmers, 4 per cent to landlords, 4 per cent to stockholders, 4 per cent to bondholders and other lenders. Another 2 per cent is retained by business for expansion, and that's what makes new jobs. The final 6 per cent in the statistics represents the portion of the national income corporations, altogether, pay in taxes.

In the 25 year period 1920-1940, corporations paid out in dividends $20 billion and paid out in taxes to the government $17 billion. Of interest too were the statistics based on research conducted by the University of Notre Dame, showing that 73 cents out of every $1 of interest, dividends and rent payments to individuals go to people with less than $100-a-week income. In other words, the property and the wealth of America is distributed widely through the whole population.

One-Cent Profit
As this column is being written I have on my desk the January issue of Swift & Company's employee magazine containing a report on Swift's business for 1952 and a personal letter from Swift's president, John Holmes. The report and letter are good examples of the social value and the social consciousness of today's big industries in America.

Swift's sales last year totaled $250,000,000. Raw materials, including livestock, dairy and poultry products, cottonseed, vegetable oils, etc., cost $179,627,515 — or 72 per cent. Other operating expenses were $40,000,000. Of the remainder $10,000,000 was needed for payroll and employee benefits for Swift's 70,000 employees — leaving $10,000,000, which was paid in state and federal taxes, and $1,000,000 net profit for Swift's 61,000 shareholders. Swift's profit made approximately one-cent profit on every dollar's worth of sales. The government got more in taxes than the owners got in interest on their investment.

Teamwork Did It
Mr. Holmes wrote his employees: "To a large degree, our success in 1952 came as a result of good work and good teamwork by Swift men and women. You have shown your ability to overcome tough problems. I have always believed that the greatest source of Swift & Company's strength is its people. I am now more convinced than ever."

"We have reasons to be proud of our 1952 record, but I would like to think of it merely as a starting point for greater accomplishments. It is gratifying to show improved earnings because for the good of us all it is desirable that the company we work for be successful and profitable. I am encouraged, ever, by the opportunities that lie ahead."

Yes, it is desirable that the company we work for be successful, and it is even more desirable that we preserve the successful economic system under which industry has made such great strides

THE AMERICAN WAY

Out of the Muddle

by George Peck

EDITOR'S NOTE: George Peck is Chairman of the Board of the National Labor-Management Foundation and Executive Editor of its official publication, PARTNERS.

On the eve of his leave-taking as president of General Motors Corporation, Charles E. Wilson and his fellow-executives launched a contest aimed at a "defense" of the American people—just before Mr. Wilson took on the even bigger job of Secretary of Defense in the Eisenhower Cabinet. This contest is to get America's highway and traffic system "out of the muddle." History may prove this to have been the most important project undertaken by General Motors during the many years during which Mr. Wilson was top executive of that corporation.

With the horrible loss of life due to traffic accidents over the recent holidays so fresh in our minds the importance of finding some method to eliminate death-creating and costly congestion on our highways is plainly evident.

AND THEY'RE STILL HANGING AROUND

DALE CARNEGIE

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

MARGARET SHAW, 2103 Pennington, Trenton, New Jersey, as a child of ten years was worried because she thought her mother would become totally blind. Her mother had already lost the sight of one eye. She remembers so well how she lay awake at night and worried. She couldn't help hearing everything that went on in the night. Mother would have spells of dizziness and lose her sight temporarily. Her dad would rub her mother's back vigorously since improvement in circulation seemed to bring back her sight. Her mother had had the very same symptoms before she lost the sight in the other eye a few years previously. All attempts to save her sight in that eye had failed.

Margaret says she can remember well how her father called her until she thought her heart would break. She can't remember that she cried a great deal, but she worried and helped her mother by worrying. She realized that she wasn't helping her mother by worrying; that there was much to do with the twins and other younger members of the family needing attention. Young as she was a far greater power to help in such a situation. She prayed hard and often. Not only did she pray, but she figured out just what she would do to help her mother in case she did lose her sight. She would read to her and describe all the flowers and plants that she loved so much.

Well, fortunately she never had to do any of these things because her mother never lost her sight completely. God answered Margaret's prayers.

Scanning the NEWS

SINCE the Republican landslide of November, the average man has been wondering what approach the new congress would take toward a cut in taxes. Last week, with congress just getting down to serious work, an opinion was being formed and expressed.

Leaders in this legislative body, Washington news reports say, are just about agreed that they can not promise too much in the way of a tax cut too soon. First must come a balanced budget.

Representative Charles A. Hall, of Indiana, majority leader in the house, had this to say on the subject: "I think first of all a major objective of this new administration must be to balance the budget, and not to go to the reckless with the finances and the financial structure of this country. But at the same time I think that we must drive to cut the cost of government and, doing that, to bring about a tax reduction."

One of the leading news stories in the nation's press the past two weeks has been Winston Churchill's visit in the United States. His talks that week with leading national figures has caused considerable speculation, especially by his talk to Dwight Eisenhower. In that connection, it is interesting to recall what the two men have written about each other in the past. Here is what Churchill wrote about Eisenhower: "Eisenhower was a broad-minded man, practical, unpretentious, dealing with events as they came in cool self-possession."

Eisenhower wrote this about Churchill: "Mr. Churchill was a man of extraordinary strong convictions and a master in argument and debate. He was a great war leader and he is a great man."

On his arrival in the United States, Mr. Churchill put forth these views on various subjects:

1. Now that Britain possesses an atomic weapon, she would like to be a "useful partner" of the U. S., but has been deprived of the exchange of information promised by the late President Roosevelt.

2. The Korean war has improved the chances of world peace.

3. The possibility of World War III has receded, but has not entirely disappeared.

4. The country wants "trade, not aid" to regain her economic strength. He termed the present U. S. trade policies as "unsatisfactory" and hampers the sale of British goods in this country.

One of the most shocking reports to reach public print in many months was the recent Army statement that 46,000 enlisted men have deserted since the start of the Korean War. All of them, except 11,000, have been picked up and returned to Army service, the report said.

The Army officer who made this information available added that the desertion rate during the current hostilities was less than half of what it was during one 12-month period toward the end of World War II.

"The General Motors Better Highways Awards Contest" is open to any American, including G.M. employees. A total of 102 prizes totaling $194,000 is offered by the company, ranging from $25,000 to $500. The detailing regarding these prizes and how to enter the contest will be given in my next article. In this article I have only space to quote a part of Mr. Wilson's remarks in launching the contest. From here on, it is our Secretary of Defense speaking:

I would like to visit with you for a few minutes about a subject I think is extremely important to every man and woman in the United States. I'm speaking, of course, about the highway problem—costly to all of us in money, time, pleasure, and lives.

I am concerned about it. General Motors is concerned about it. Everyone in the United States should be, because it affects every one of us. It makes everything we use cost a little more — because everything we use is delayed at one time or another by highway congestion....

When we were building our highway system during the twenties, no one dreamed people would want and need the 53 million motor vehicles we now have. No one dreamed that we would need to drive our cars and trucks more than a billion miles every day. And, during and since World War II, few realize what would result from putting off highway improvement in the interest of all-out national defense....

Our population will continue to increase for many years to come. That means that the need for motor vehicles will continue to increase. And that means that instead of the 53 million cars and trucks of today, our people will need and want and own as many as 80 million cars and trucks 25 years from now!

Yet, in the face of this prospective load on our highways—in the face of the increasing load that already has been placed on our 20-year-old highway system—the fact is we have actually been spending less and less on our highways! In business terms, that is the equivalent of liquidating an important asset.

Almost 60,000,000 people ride to work and school in this country every day. Few of them get too much upset if they waste 10 minutes each way because of rush-hour traffic. Nevertheless, altogether, they would be wasting 20,000,000 hours every day!

At only a penny a minute, the value of the time wasted would pay for the increased highway improvement we need every year.

We must persuade each other that our lost minutes added to the lost minutes of all our fellow citizens add up to millions of lost hours. We must persuade each other that the extra pennies of extra transportation costs resulting from highway congestion add up to extra dollars out of the pockets of each of us.

To get the job done, we must make clear to our political leaders what we want and need and recognize we must pay for.

So, to that end—to the end of getting people in every walk of American life to think and talk about the highway problems, in terms of their own interest—General Motors has undertaken the sponsorship of the nation-wide contest.

We hope and believe the 102 prizes are substantial enough to attract a tremendous number of entries—to make it worth while for a tremendous number of people to study the facts of the highway problem and to think of the facts in terms of their town and the public interest.

We hope this contest will stimulate a great national educational program. We hope it will get millions of our people thinking and asking questions about the highway problem. And, we hope it will help answer the problems of financing, planning, and administration that are involved.

We hope that the winner will come up with an idea worth to the nation 25 times the first award of $25,000. We assume that any or all of the winners will contribute ideas worth far more to the nation than the total of $194,000 in prizes. I hope that you, yourself, will participate in our contest. I hope that you will actively encourage the participation of all who want better highways and have any ideas about how we can get them.

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable From Local Welfare

The two-party political system is essential if we are to have reasonably efficient and honest government—and government which is responsive to the will of the people. There is considerable difference of opinion as to just how healthy that system is today.

Thus, Farm Journal says in its January issue, "High among the several fortunate results from the election must be counted the strengthening of the two-party system in government. The Democratic party retains a strong representation in Congress. Neither House nor Senate will be overwhelmingly one-sided.... The administration will be subjected to constant scrutiny by Democrats in House and Senate who, as critics, will be performing their proper minority functions...."

"We properly rejoice that this election has so strengthened the two-party system—one to administer the government, and another always vigilant and aggressively ready to take over."

A somewhat less sanguine view is taken by Herbert Hoover in an article in a recent issue of This Week. In his opinion the Number 1 reform needed in our democratic process "is the restoration of a real two-party system."

Mr. Hoover does not believe we have that kind of a system now. For a century and a half, he writes, the dominant elements in both parties have held "to that inter-pretation of Liberalism which meant more and not less liberty for the individual." He adds, "Today, ideological differences smash around like a loose cannon on the desks of both our political parties."

What, then, is Mr. Hoover's suggestion? He believes, in essence, that we should have a party of the left and a party of the right. The leftist party would be the Democratic party, and those who held views would belong to it and run for office under its label. The rightist party would be the Republican party, and the views of its members and candidates would follow that philosophy. Unless this happens, Mr. Hoover feels, the democratic process will be wrecked on the rocks of "conspiring factions" and the two parties "will be on the road to a place where the people can have no authority in the ballot box or in the government." He observes that many European governments have cracked up because of the "multitude of fractional political parties. A good current example of the dangers of fractionalism is France, where it has not been possible to form effective government at all."

In any event, it is obvious that both parties contain many anomalies. To take but two examples, the views of Senator Morse of Oregon, who now calls himself an "Independent Republican" are much more in accord with the official position of the Democratic party than that of the GOP — while those of Senator Byrd of Virginia, who holds office as a Democrat, are very much like those of President Eisenhower and in some instances are of a more conservative nature. This is the case, to some degree, with many men in both branches of Congress.

Many students of our political system hold that a reshuffling of our parties, such as Mr. Hoover advocates, is the only sound and workable solution.

Ideas from other editors

From The Sylacauga News, Sylacauga, Ala.: A "talking horse" has hit the headlines lately, answering many unsolved questions. This is all right if you can believe a horse. My experience has been that they are unmitigated liars. Once or twice I have inquired of one of the breed how he was coming out in a particular race, and he gave me the wrong answer by half a track. Of course he might have failed to tell the jockey what he told me.

From The Lincoln Times, Lincoln, N. C.: Today most of us talk about billions as casually as people used to talk about thousands. And that's largely a result of the trend of government in recent years. Our national debt is around $200,000,000,000 and annual spending has been rolling merrily along at an $80,000,000,000 rate. So figures large enough to tax the imagination of a first-class mathematician are commonplace in public discussion.

In view of this, a Reader's Digest item on just what a single, solitary billion amounts to should be of wide interest.

Suppose that your family started a business with a billion dollar surplus in the year A. D. One. And suppose it had been so badly and extravagantly managed that it had lost $1,000 every day of the 1952 years that have gone by since then. You wouldn't have to worry about it—you'd be a long, long way from broke. For you and your descendants could go right on losing that $1,000 a day until the year 2739 before you'd run out of money!

That's how big a billion is—a solitary billion, not five or ten or fifty of them. It indicates the incredible extent of today's government spending. It shows how much every taxpayer has to gain from government economy and efficiency. Thoroughly documented surveys say that Federal spending alone would be cut by as much as $10,000,000,000 a year without hurting any necessary activity. It's your money they've been so busy throwing away in Washington.

It must be because they marry so often these days.

Behold, as the clay is in the potter's hand, so are ye in mine hand, O house of Israel, (Jeremiah 18:6.) Read Jeremiah 18:2-6 or Luke 13:35-40.

ONE day a man was moving rocks in front of his beach cottage. His neighbor came over to help. To aid in moving the rocks, they used a log which had drifted in from the sea. At the end of the task, the man offered to pay his neighbor. "No pay for being a neighbor," he said. "But do you mind if I take that log?" he asked. "Take the log, certainly, and thanks for the help," replied the man.

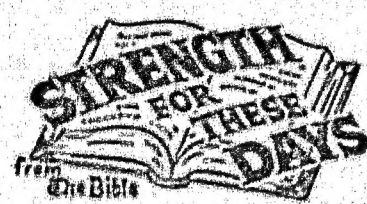

The neighbor was a cabinetmaker. The log was mahogany. It may have been washed aboard from a freighter. That winter the log was transformed into a beautiful piece of furniture.

Human lives undergo a transformation in the hands and under the spirit of Christ. His transforming power can take that which seems good for little or nothing and create of it beauty and worth. Jesus touched people of old and they were made whole. May He so touch us this day and claim us for His own, and grant to us the experiences of the life abundant.

Prayer
Our Father, grant that by Thy power the possibilities within us, dormant but never dead, may spring to life. Renew our spirits that we may be Christlike and enjoy and share the heritage of the life abundant. Through Christ our Lord, Amen.

Thought for the Day
"All along my pilgrim journey, Saviour, let me walk with Thee."
— J. Manley Shaw (Massachusetts)

And they say, how doth God know? and is there knowledge in the most High?

—(Psalm LXXIII, 11.)
Sometimes, in our weaknesses, our selfishness, our self-centeredness, we may feel that we can "go it alone"—especially if the going happens to be good at the moment. But just let disaster or tragedy confront us, and then we realize—often too late—that without God and His mercy and His strength we are pitifully weak and helpless. God is omniscient. He knows the beginning and the end of all our plans; His will shall be done.

CHRIST'S HIDDEN LIFE
THE Apostle Paul says that Christ was like to us in all things, save sin. The Gospels tell the story of those last three years of His life, during which He went about His Father's business—teaching, preaching and healing. They merely mention the thirty years when Christ lived a hidden and apparently undistinguished life.

Those thirty years are, nevertheless, all-important; for they contain a deeply significant lesson. The lesson is in the very fact that there were, indeed, years of ordinary living. Far from being, as some might think, wasted years, they served to drive home the point that ordinary living can, and should be, both holy and exalted.

The great mass of men whose lives follow a humdrum pattern are indebted to Christ for the long time He lived in humble obscurity. When the Son of God said His prayers at His mother's knee, He was like every child who grows and develops in the quietness of an ordinary home.

The shining glory of Christ's hidden life lay in His utter obedience to God's will. It is just as wonderful to think of the Boy Christ humbly doing the bidding of His mother as it is to reflect on the Man Christ accepting the bitter chalice of Gethsemane. At all times and in all things—great or small—Christ unswervingly followed the wishes and desires of His Father in heaven. In this He set a pattern for all who would follow Him whether they be rulers or kings, or just plain, ordinary people.

"THE UNIVERSALIST FAITH"
FROM A LAYMAN'S VIEWPOINT
If I were asked today, January 27, 1953, to write a Universalist Profession of Faith that represented the thinking of our Universalist Laymen and Laywomen of the State of Maine, it would be as follows:

1.—We believe in the Universal Fatherhood of God and the Universal Brotherhood of Mankind.
2.—We believe in the God of Creation, Love, Justice, and Mercy.
3.—We believe that men and women have a God-given right and duty to live a normal, decent, happy life on Earth and we believe that men and women working together in partnership with God, will build the better world of tomorrow.
4.—We believe in the Spiritual Leadership of Jesus, and in the teachings of Jesus as the guide to happiness and the abundant life.

5.—We believe in the Authority of Truth, the Search for Truth, and in the Truth to be known in the future.
6.—We believe in Just Retribution on Earth for breaking the Natural Laws of God, and Just Compensation for a Life of Brotherhood and good works.
7.—We believe in God as our Spiritual Father, that every child is born a child of God, and that every soul returns to the God who gave it birth.

I guess that things are going to be a little different around this place from now on or at least there will be more showing on the outside anyway. I don't care about any more business as I am naturally a very lazy person. I was happy once just sitting around and looking wise (if possible) but now the Calso Company plans to put me to work if they can. They have a job on their hands which they will find out sooner or later.

Have not made the complete change over yet but am in the process. I am still on the fence however and I still don't know what is going on in this place except that I am here and don't know as yet how long I will stay. Negotiations are going on however and I am beginning to feel like a consultant by the way the bigwigs have been blowing in here.

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of George I. Angevine who passed away Jan. 31, 1949

Sad and sudden was the call, Of one so dearly loved by all; Your memory is as sweet today, As in the hour you passed away. The blow was hard, the shock severe, We never thought death so near; Only those who have lost, can tell, The pain of parting without farewell.

Motorists, your tire chains are wintertime friends. Don't neglect them. Your State Police say: your chains will help you get going when streets and roads are slippery; they will help you keep going in mud or snow; and they will help you stop with less risk of skidding. Give your chains a chance to give you a safe life in your winter driving.

THE lady who came into the theater and sat down in front of me, accompanied by an elderly companion, was, for a while, my favorite kind of movie patron. She was small, she had a poodle cut and a very small hat. It wasn't any trouble to see over her at all.

My lucky day, I decided, and settled down to watch the hero battle the villain with swords, during which they raced up and down stairways, jumped on tables, and swung from the chandelier.

Then, unexpectedly, the hero said, "This girl is killing me."

"What?" I yelled aloud, before I realized it wasn't the hero but the little lady in front of me.

She turned and glared. At least I think it was a glare. "I wasn't talking to you," she snapped.

"Fresh!" snorted her companion. "Pardon me, ladies," says I. "I thought it was the hero who said his girlie was killing him."

The little lady proceeded to give me a tongue lashing. She ended by saying she was sure the hero, Double Douglas, didn't wear a girlie.

"Silence," someone behind me hissed. "This is a movie, not a sewing circle."

"I didn't say a word," I hissed back.

"You did, too," the little lady said. "You said Double Douglas wore a girlie. If you don't shut up I'm going to call the manager."

"But lady," I protested.

"Silence," the guy behind hissed. I shut up. You can't win with people who talk during a movie.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. Emeline Ingles, Kendal, Idaho: I remember when old fashioned spelling bees were the favorite social function of the community. Two would choose sides, each trying to get the best speller. Sometimes it was the parents against the youngsters; sometimes it was the men and boys against the women and girls. Each side lined up on opposite sides of the room and the last speller down was the honored one.

From Mrs. Edward Koch, Ft. Recovery, Ohio: I remember, in the church I attended as a child, the men all sat on one side of the aisle and the ladies on the other, and when the sexton (as he was called) took up the collection he didn't use a plate, but had a long pole, nicely varnished with a blue velvet bag fastened on one end, and to the bottom of this bag was attached a small bell. He would stand in the aisle and pass this bag down the length of the pew, giving it a vigorous shake in front of each person in the pew, who, in turn put in a penny. Since the collection was taken after a long sermon, there was probably a reason for the bell.

From Mrs. Mabel Cadotte, Kelly Lake, Minnesota: I remember the little Ford with the square fenders high up on the sides. The motor was long coats called "dusters". The men wore caps and goggles, the women long veils over their hats. There were women drivers in those days. They always drove from the front seat, not the back.

The LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

Now and then I thumb my way through a Canadian paper—and you know, those Maple Leafers, Independent, and workers that they are, they sometimes find themselves in a jam like we do over here on our side of the border after the horse is gone. And it comes from listening to the medicine men who sell new ideas on reaching the millennium quick short cut.

I just been reading about their "Hydro" over there in Ontario. Hydro is what they call their State owned power system that for 23 years has promised so much—but which now has started to mire down under a debt of over a billion bucks—a threatening power shortage—a hoisting of rates. And Hydro has been exempt from taxes of 9 dollars a horsepower for years, while the private outfits left there pay full taxes.

Hydro is the "Sacred Cow of Ontario politics" as a Toronto paper calls it. Now, don't look superior-like or snicker or say what kind of hordes are these Canucks, listening to such wild and wacky political palaver of letting the "people have the profit." Down Memphis and Chattanooga way we have the same kind of mistake to clean up TVA. And the thing to do is, dust off our vent about when a sucker gulp a couple timer get Sambo out from behind the switchboard and pronto.

Simple and sweet—that describes Fruit Topped Coffee Cake. It's made from a quick coffee cake batter and topped with sweetened prunes and apricots.

Bake shops have a wonderful selection of attractively shaped coffee cakes. These good-tasting breads are handy and nourishing to have on hand for snacks and breakfast.

If you're baking your own coffee cake, make it look extra appealing by using a different baking pan.

The recipe for this quick coffee cake is just right for an 8-inch square pan or 9-inch round pan. Try a fluted pan if you have one, of the shape pictured here. Or use a tube pan.

This Fruit Coffee Cake is easy to make—so mix it up often and vary it by using different toppings.

Merely combine the dry ingredients, then the liquid ingredients. Mix the two, stirring just until smooth. Use dried apples or dried peaches instead of the prunes and apricots. Or try canned and drained cherries, blueberries or pineapple tidbits.

Fruit Coffee Cake is good for the breakfast menu because it offers body-building protein. Use "enriched flour" in your baking for added B-vitamins and food iron.

FRUIT TOPPED COFFEE CAKE

3 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
6 cooked, dried apricot halves
6 cooked, dried prune halves
1 1/2 cups sifted enriched flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg, beaten
1/2 cup milk
3 tablespoons melted shortening

Sprinkle sugar over butter or margarine in bottom of greased 1 1/2-quart fluted pan. Arrange apricot and prune halves alternately around bottom of pan. Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and 1/2 cup sugar. Combine egg, milk and shortening. Add to flour mixture, stirring until mixture is smooth. Pour into prepared pan and bake in moderately hot oven (400°F.) about 35 minutes.

Makes 1 coffee cake.

MAINE'S ARTIST PREPARING EXHIBIT FOR SPORTS SHOWS

Maine's official artist, designer and master craftsman, Kfir Beck, is building a sports show exhibit in his shop at Mt. Vernon which will get front page billing in Boston and New York next month. And deservedly so, according to those who have seen it.

Seventy-eight feet long and 18 feet deep, the exhibit will occupy the stage in the main auditorium of Mechanics building, Boston, where the show will run Feb. 7-15. In New York's Grand Central Palace, a preferred space on the first floor will be used, Feb. 21-March 1.

The theme of the exhibit this year is Maine outdoors and something of the charming rural countryside which attracts vacationists to the state is incorporated with the fish and game features. An oval red mill, 12 by 16 feet, is typical of the intended theme. This moss-covered brick and stone building is backed by evergreens. A huge waterfall, eight feet high, adds to the illusion of reality. On the right of the mill is a pond and connecting brook. Logs are seen coming downstream to a boom and entering the mill. The effect is strikingly realistic.

At the left of the mill is an enclosure which will contain two deer. These stuffed animals were taken from fawns by Beck.

A 25-foot fish pool containing brown trout, brook trout and salmon, will be a feature of the exhibit. An old rail fence will enclose the display.

An example of the painstaking work being done by Beck and his helper, Merle Pinkham, Hensfield, is an old window in the top of the mill. It took a full day to create this cobwebbed, authentic appearance.

Motorists that they spot on a frosty windshield may be the keyhole of death. It lets you see only what is directly in front of you, but it does not let you see pedestrians and motor vehicles that come from the side. The Maine State Police remind us that visibility is extra important when the streets are slippery, because more time is needed to stop. So always clear your windshield and other windows before you start out. Remember, you must see danger to avoid it.

GOULD ACADEMY

GOULD 49-ST. PATRICKS 47

Gould's starters really put on a scoring spree as they piled up a 20-3 lead in the first seven minutes. At this point Coach Anderson inserted the reserves and the visitors began finding the range. Before the third period was over St. Pat's had caught up and at times assumed leads. The regulars never could seem to get going again although Fossett and Rolfe came through at the finish with baskets that clinched the game.

The J. V.'s continued winning with a 41-28 victory over the visitors.

SOUTH PARIS TAKES GOULD, 47-41

South Paris jumped to a nine point lead in the first period and the Huskies just couldn't catch up. The Cardinals were a better team however than the score indicated as they missed numerous short shots especially in the first half. They were definitely the best league opponent Gould has yet met.

Gould put on a last ditch fight in the final stanza and at one time were up to 41-45 but with only Rolfe scoring in double figures the home team could not make the grade. Billy Snow, Gammon, and LeBlanc were the outstanding performers for the victors.

In the preliminary the Gould J. V.'s also lost a hard-fought battle 46-42.

SOUTH PARIS 54—GOULD 31

South Paris had little trouble overpowering Gould at Par's last Tuesday 54-31. The powerful Cardinals with their tall men controlling the boards rolled up a first period score of 18-5 and coasted the rest of the way. With two more league games to go, the winners have a good chance of finishing on top. They now have a 5-1 record with both Gould and Mexico having lost two.

The entire Paris team played good ball with the Snow brothers leading the scoring as Billy netted 16 and Alan 10. For Gould, Fossett was the only man to reach double figures as he scored 12 points in the last half after scoring only one during the first two periods.

The Gould J. V.'s quickly got back into their winning ways by upsetting their Paris rivals, 37 to 25.

For 'Dimes'

You still have a few days to get that March of Dimes contribution in. The nationwide campaign to raise polio-fighting funds closes January 31 when an estimated 1,500,000 volunteers will begin tabulating the results of their month-long efforts to raise the needed money.

In a last-minute appeal, Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, reminded campaign workers that more polio sufferers than ever before are counting on the March of Dimes for needed financial aid.

Cities Unpaid Bills

"We simply cannot let a single patient suffer for lack of funds," Mr. O'Connor said. "We must raise enough money to care for 58,000 who were stricken in 1952 and prior years and still need our help."

This is in addition to the more than $7,000,000 in unpaid bills inherited from last year, together with the responsibility for pushing our research programs to the limit. We simply can't coast during these last few days."

Although local campaign leaders are optimistic about the results of this year's drive, no one could say whether or not the necessary funds would actually be raised.

'Mom's Home'

For the first time in three years, Mrs. Irene Simpson of South Gate, Calif., is home again—in a respirator made available by the March of Dimes. Diane, 8, demonstrates skill on a unicycle as mother and daughter exchange reunion smiles.

WATCH FOR TRAINS IN HAZARDOUS WEATHER

"Wise motorists will train their minds to mind the trains, especially under hazardous wintertime weather and road conditions," declared Lieutenant John deWinter, Director, Division of Traffic and Safety, Maine State Police. "Street and road approaches to railroad grade crossings and highway intersections often may be slippery, more so than other highway locations, because the braking action of previous vehicles has packed the snow harder."

"In most wintertime train-auto collisions, visibility is poor and traction insecure," deWinter stressed. "The poor visibility often is a result of several factors, including: darkness, inadequate lights, falling snow, freezing sleet, faulty windshield wipers, and fatigued or bleary driver's eyes."

"Insufficient traction can be traced," he added, "to fast driving, improper braking, lack of good brakes, or failure to have tires equipped with chains during snow and ice conditions."

The official warned drivers of cars, trucks, and buses to "expect a train from either direction at any time at any crossing." Motorists are cautioned to "be alert for all advanced warning signs indicating approach to a highway-rail crossing, and to proceed across tracks only after assuring oneself that the way is unquestionably clear."

It was pointed out that some drivers depend on knowing train schedules...but trains can be late and there are unscheduled trains.

"Many drivers find it difficult to judge the speed at which a train is approaching, so if a bell is ringing or red lights are flashing, the only safe thing to do is wait. At locations where there are several tracks, a motorist must have more than a one-track mind, waiting to see that all tracks are clear. Above all, never try beating the train to the crossing," he concluded.
